

Where are they now?

With auditions coming up for OYP's 2011 production of "Annie," we thought it would be fun to share news of what some of the orphans from the 2000 production are up to now.

Georgie Wilkins (Annie) was a home-schooled 9-year-old when she landed the lead role. Now she is a voice major at Truett-McConnell College, where she plays guitar and sings for Enthroned Praise, Truett's traveling worship team.

Laura Slade Wiggins (Annie understudy) was a 12-year-old student at Oconee Middle School. She struck out for Los Angeles a few years ago and recently landed a regular role in a new Showtime series starring William H. Macy and Allison Janney.

Margot Hancock (Duffy), then a 12-year-old at Malcom Bridge Middle School, made her OYP debut in this show. She went on to lead roles in many OYP shows and was seen most recently as Eve in Children of Eden. A senior at UGA, she teaches musical theater classes at Oconee Youth School of Performance.

Savannah Duan (Molly) was a 7-year-old Athens Montessori student when she made her OYP debut as the littlest orphan. Now a junior at Athens Academy, she recently returned to the OYP stage as a cheerleader in Grease.

Wendy Hanna (Mary) was an 8-year-old at St. Joseph's Catholic School. She went on to appear in many OYP shows and was seen most recently as Cha Cha DiGrigorio in Grease. Now a UGA freshman in the Honors Program, she will appear at Sanford Stadium this fall as a Georgette.

Kelsey Duttlinger (orphan chorus) was an 8-year-old student at Malcom Bridge Elementary School and made her OYP debut along with her sister Megan, then 6. Kelsey is now a freshman at Lee University in the Vocal Performance Program. She was last seen in OYP's production of High School Musical as Gabriella.

McCall Stiles (orphan chorus) was a 7-year-old also at Malcom Bridge Elementary. Now a senior at North Oconee High School, she has appeared in many OYP shows and was seen most recently as Mrs. Buckett in Willie Wonka.

Note to former orphans (and other Annie cast members): We have lost track of some of you, so email oconeeyouthplayhouse@gmail.com and tell us what's up these days.
